It has not been so many years since hotels had a large register where guests wrote their names and addresses, one after the other, and the register was always open on the clerk's desk.

If a person wanted to hear a hurried exclamation and see the clerk grab for the register, it was only necessary to make a move as if to close the big book. Every hotel keeper, or at least a great many of them, thought it was bad luck to close a hotel register.

For many years I dropped into the hotels here occasionally to inspect the register and ascertain if any notables had registered.

The modern method of registering guests, however, is for them to write their names and addresses on a card which is fixed in a small tablet, with pen attached, and a card always ready.

These cards are filed in numerical order after the names and addresses have been recorded for the card index system hotels now maintain.

The card system is a big improvement over the old method, and each guest registering does not know whether he is the first registrant of the day, or whether scores or hundreds have preceded him.

Speaking of mushrooms (and a lot of mushroom lovers have been speaking of them recently by reason of the large number to be found), the largest "hickory jack" type of mushroom I have ever seen was brought to the Record-Herald office by Sheriff W. H. Ichniowski.

It measured over 16 inches across, was over 12 inches in width, and 10 inches in height, and composed of scores of segments.

Bill said a resident of Third Street found the mushroom on a roadside park between Leesburg and Greenfield, 10 days ago and it had been at the man's home since that time.

I don't suppose I ever will become accustomed to seeing boys and men walking along the streets or at work with their shirt-tails hanging out.

I have heard a great deal of caustic comment on this method of dress during the past three or four years, or ever since the first shirt-tail was seen on the streets.

As I was talking with a man up street recently, a youth with his shirt-tail draped down half way to his knees, (I still can't figure why some of those shirt-tails are so long since OPA, RCA, WOOL or some other lettered department issued an edict to shorten shirt-tails to save goods) walked by.

"I was brought up to think that the proper place for a shirt-tail was inside of the trousers, and to be embarrassed if part of my shirt-tail happened to be misplaced and was showing," said the man, and then he continued: "It seems that this is an age when informality and untidiness have taken the place of formality and neatness with a great many folks. It would seem that culture, so badly needed today, has been slipping dreadfully in a great many ways of dress and manners generally."

FIRST CLASS FIGHT IS DEWEY'S PROMISE

Campaign Won't Interfere
With War Effort

BILLINGS, Mont., Sept. 15.—(AP)—A fighting campaign which he declared would not interfere with the war effort was outlined today by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey as he conferred with Montana's Governor Sam Ford and old political leaders.

Old fashioned torchlights burned for the first time in his cross country campaign tour last night when a crowd estimated by police at 7,000 persons greeted the Republican nominee on his arrival here from Sheridan Wyo.

The New York governor promised the cheering throng that "we will have a first class fight from now until election."

TROPICAL STORM
LEAVES 12 DEAD
ON EAST COAST

Hurricane Blows Itself Out
After Whipping Seaboard
As Far North as Maine

(By the Associated Press)
A West Indian hurricane leaving a trail of destruction from North Carolina to Massachusetts blew out to sea off southern Maine early this morning.

Twelve deaths were attributed to the storm along nearly 1,000 miles of the Atlantic coast. Winds of 80 to 100 miles an hour lashed blinding rains, ripped buildings, tore down power and telephone lines and uprooted thousands of trees.

The storm on Long Island and in New England was exceeded in violence only by the devastating hurricane of September 21, 1938, which battered the same area, taking more than 600 lives and causing damage estimated at $500,000,000.

Atlantic City and neighboring New Jersey coastal resorts appeared to have suffered the greatest damage. Mountainous waves struck the boardwalk sections of these cities while a 90-mile wind tore off roofs of some apartment houses and damaged other dwellings, leaving hundreds homeless.

Long Island, southeastern Massachusetts and Rhode Island also bore the full brunt of the gale, but its force was not as great as had been anticipated.

A majority of the smaller towns of Long Island were without light and power after the storm; communications and transportation were almost completely disrupted.

The New York City area and Connecticut escaped with comparatively little damage, although seven of the recorded deaths were in Greater New York.

The storm winds reached a record of 95 miles an hour in New York and Boston reported a wind velocity of 98 miles an hour.

In states all along the coast, state guards, civilian defense and Red Cross disaster workers were mobilized before the storm struck. Ample warnings from the weather bureau made possible the evacuation of hundreds of seaside resort communities.

RECONVERSION GIVEN AN OK IN MASSILLON

AKRON, Sept. 15.—(AP)—The War Production Board today issued the first "spot" authorization for production of civilian goods in this area to the Massillon (O.) Aluminum Co., Lefl Oylen, district WPB manager, reported.

Under the WPB reconversion policy and with War Manpower Commission approval, the Massillon firm was permitted and allotted materials to produce 379,330 units of household cooking utensils during the fourth quarter, 1944.

Approximately 186 workers, engaged in producing army food containers, will be given continued employment as a result of the "spot" authorization, Oylen explained. He said the workers were ahead of production schedules and needed the additional work.

Reds Slug Way Into Warsaw
And Finns Now Fighting Nazis

(By the Associated Press)
Polish-born Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky in a supreme effort to liberate the capital of his forefathers already may have hurled the first assault wave of Russian and Polish infantry across the Vistula River into Warsaw, it was believed today.

While Red army guns blasted Nazi positions in Warsaw and the frontal attack against the city mounted from the captured industrial district of Praga on the Vis-tula's east bank, another Russian-Polish column closed in on the west side of the river in the vicinity of Warka early in August.

The Warsaw zone, reportedly proclaimed by Hitler as the "interior defense line of Germany," was the objective of an all out offensive aimed at reaching the Reich itself.

Rokossovsky's first White Russian army and the first division of Lt. Gen. Zigmund Berling's first Polish army seized Praga after an all-night street battle.

Front dispatches gave no indication of whether the Germans have blown up the four bridges at Praga across the Vistula, but said their demolition could not halt the Russians in their determined drive to liberate the city.

Picked troops of Russian and Polish origin volunteered to liberate the city and free the Polish patriots still battling its Nazi occupants.

In addition to Praga the Russians and Poles captured 15 villages and railway stations up and down the Vistula for a distance of 25 to 35 miles.

Northeast of Warsaw the Russians drove westward from captured Lomza and seized Nowogrod on the southern bank of the Narew River 15 miles south of East Prussia and on the road to Allenstein.

MOUNTAIN OF STEEL
READY TO CONVERT

Conversion May Come Before
Actual Nazi Surrender

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Fifty thousand tons of steel is ready for war-to-peace conversion, to be turned into production of washing machines, refrigerators and sewing machines upon the "collapse" of Germany.

J. A. Krug, acting chairman of WPB, had indicated WPB reconversion plans are geared to the possibility that Germany may collapse before the actual Nazi surrender. Thus the resumption of production of these and other needed items does not necessarily hinge upon the official surrender.

Marines and Soldiers Charge Ashore on Palau in Face of Fierce Opposition But Morotai Is Seized by Surprise Without Opposition—501 Jap Planes and 173 Ships Knocked Out in Softening Up Assaults

By LEONARD MILLIMAN
(By the Associated Press)

American amphibious forces closed in on the Philippines today, simultaneously invading stepping stone islands at Palau and Morotai in the wake of a terrific air bombardment of the Philippines that knocked out 501 Japanese planes and 173 surface craft which might have sparked a counterattack.

The biggest guns of the United States Navy shelled Palau, reef-protected island fortress 600 miles east of the Philippines, as marines and soldiers charged ashore in the face of fierce Japanese resistance.

The Palau Islands, invaded by American assault forces yesterday, are the principal Japanese bases guarding the eastern approach to the southern Philippines.

They are 850 miles southwest of Guam and 600 directly east of Davao, principal city in the southern Philippines.

Jap Island Stronghold
The group is headquarters for the Carolines, heretofore never invaded although hammered from end to end by Allied bombers for months and blasted by American task forces. The Carolines, once probably Japan's strongest island chain, were mandated to her by the league of nations after World War One.

There are 26 principal islands in the Palau group, about 100 in all. The ragged chain of beautiful islands extends about 77 miles in a north-south direction. The Palau is on the right flank of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's forces, committed to a return to the Philippines, and on the left flank of Adm. Chester W. Nimitz's China-bound power house.

The Palau, once a major Japanese naval and air base, have more than one good harbor where the Japanese fleet could anchor. Units of that fleet anchored there fled, however, when strong Pacific fleet carrier forces carried the war to those islands last March.

No Opposition At Morotai
Only ten Japanese were on the beach of Morotai, 300 miles south of the Philippines, and they fled as U.S. landing barges made a surprise landing while Gen. Douglas MacArthur watched from a cruiser.

"Defeat now stares Japan in the face," MacArthur said as the two-way campaign to take him back to the Philippines was "entering upon its decisive stage."

Assault troops hacked out beachheads in the Palau Islands, mightiest enemy stronghold invaded in the Pacific war, under cover of a thundering air and naval barrage from Adm. William F. Halsey's Third Fleet.

"Landings are continuing against stiff ground opposition," said Adm. Chester W. Nimitz' brief announcement of the invasion.

He did not say which of the 100 Palau Islands were hit, but Tokyo radio reported the Americans landed on Peleliu. The low-lying island is at the southern end of the chain, within artillery range of others, and less protected by reefs than the rest of the group.

Extravagant Jap Claims
Tokyo claimed 2,500 Americans were killed in the first two and a half hours and the "enemy was repulsed."

Nimitz' communique, issued nine hours after the landing, made no mention of casualties and exuded quiet confidence of the outcome. American commanders want to convert the islands

'It's a Gruesome Job and They Need To Rest Up'

BELLAIRE, O., Sept. 15.—(AP)—Rescue operations in the Powhatan mine were halted today after 53 of 66 bodies of fire-trapped miners had been removed.

"The teams are just about all in," Marcus Kerr, chief of the Ohio Division of Mines, said. "It's a gruesome job and they need to rest up."

Kerr said work would resume in "a couple of days."

All recovered bodies have been identified and removed to undertaking establishments.

AACHEN DOOMED
AS YANK FORCES
SURROUND CITY

Germans Flee Nancy and Maastricht During Night And Americans Move In

(By the Associated Press)
The cities of Nancy and Maastricht, strongholds at opposite ends of a 180-mile front, fell today to the battering offensive of Americans armies which had driven with shattering force into the depths of the Siegfried line at three places.

Nancy, a famed French bastion of 121,000 population on the banks of the Meurthe in a crook below the Moselle, fell in the southern onslaught of Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's Third Army at 11 A. M. (5 A. M. Eastern War time).

Maastricht, Netherlands city guarding the Meuse Canal where the Germans made their fateful crossing into Belgium in 1940, fell during fierce penetrations of German defenses north of half-encircled Aachen, the German high command announced.

Nancy, 14th city of France and historic scene of French resistance both in ancient times and in the first World War, is 68 miles from the Strasbourg crossing of the Rhine.

Aachen Surrounded
The great German communication center of Aachen is surrounded and within American grasp to-night. The Yanks are fighting in its outskirts.

The Germans, in their desperate defense of the Siegfried line, have thrown in a strong collection of troops ranging from SS soldiers to dead men and normally non-combatant troops.

Aachen, known perhaps better by the Belgian name of Aix-La-Chapelle, lies 44 miles southwest of Cologne and in Renish Prussia. It has been here since the time of the Roman conquerors.

The Siegfried line is proving itself to be obsolete—from four years of neglect. Moreover, it was constructed for the weapons of 1939, when a 500-pound bomb was considered tremendous and when penetrating powers of field artillery was less.

In the lofty hills ringing Aachen, German troops are moving about like moles in ventilated caves, atop which our infantry stands tonight.

Nazis Leave in Night
The Germans, who had reported the jaws of an iron vice closing upon the city, withdrew during the night and fired scarcely a shot as an American general led the way in a jeep into the heart of the wildly celebrating city.

A force of Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' U. S. First Army, which crossed the frontier of the Dutch province of Limburg yesterday, was said by the Germans to have advanced to a point near Valkenburg, 12 miles northeast of Aachen, in the course of the sweep through Maastricht, a city of 67,000.

Aachen, under artillery fire from the Americans who had advanced to points within a mile of the city from the south and southeast, was threatened with an encirclement.

South of Aachen, vital citadel two miles inside the German frontier, the Germans admitted the Americans had driven powerful armored forces into wedges in the "glacis" or face of the Siegfried line.

Allied announcements said three penetrations from two to eight miles deep and six to nine miles wide—one of them completely through the first belt of fortifications—had been made in the line toward the Rhine cities of Cologne and Coblenz.

Siegfried Line Pierced
Allied headquarters announced today that American forces had "pierced an outer section of the Siegfried defenses on a six mile front," in a power drive apparently aimed at the German stronghold of Koblenz at the confluence of the Rhine and Moselle rivers.

This wedge was cut across the Belgian border east of St. Vith toward the German road junction of Prum. Two other American spearheads were aimed toward the Rhine between Coblenz and Cologne—one in the Aachen area and the other from Luxembourg.

down the Moselle. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's communique said Allied troops were "meeting increasing resistance from prepared enemy positions." The capture of several German villages in the Rothen area was confirmed.

Front dispatches said the American First Army of Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges was exploiting a tremendous advantage in firepower in a full-scale assault on the partly ringed Siegfried Line stronghold of Aachen.

The simultaneous landings on Palau and Morotai, representing advances of 300 miles for MacArthur and 825 for Nimitz, was the first coordinated land action of their two commands which will probably meet in the Philippines.

As a prelude to both operations Halsey's sea-based air forces swept the central Philippines for three successive days, knocking out Japanese air bases within striking range and routing out sea and air forces the Japanese had been husbanding to repel such invasions.

troops crossed the Marano River with tanks and infantry after hard fighting and struck to within a mile of the Rimini airfield.

The Eighth army also cleared the Coriano-San Savino ridge and smashed Nazi tank-supported counterattacks.

Severe losses were inflicted on the Germans on the whole Eighth army front in heavy fighting Sept. 13, it was announced.

THE WAR TODAY

(By the Associated Press)

The great team of MacArthur, Nimitz and Co. at last has got itself set for invasion of the Philippines by its occupation of strategic islands in the Palau and Molucca (sometimes called Halmahera) groups—an event for which readers of this column were invited six days ago to watch.

The powerfully fortified Palau Islands, which have been successfully invaded by marines and assault forces from Admiral Nimitz's command, have been the main Japanese shield for the eastern approach to the Philippines. They are only 600 miles from Davao, chief city of Mindanao, P. I.

MacArthur's amphibious troops landed on the little island of Morotai, only 300 miles south of Mindanao. Morotai is the northernmost of the Molucca islands, and in selecting this spot MacArthur again tricked the Japanese. They had looked for a landing on Halmahera, the principal island, but the general sailed right by and hit where he wasn't expected.

The operations were continuing at latest reports, but both commanders expressed confidence in the outcome. MacArthur, who landed with his men, told them in a beachhead talk: "You now dominate the last stronghold which barred you from the Philippines. . . . Our campaign is entering upon its decisive stage."

When these two grand bases are fully established we shall be able to hit at the Japanese in the Philippines from close range, both by air and by sea. No wonder the Mikado's little men are predicting a landing soon in Mindanao!

On the whole Nimitz and MacArthur have presented the Roosevelt-Churchill conference in Quebec with a mighty fine and appropriate gift, since that parley is said to be heavily concerned with planning the final assault on Japan. Here it's worthy of note that the British have volunteered renewed assurance that England will put all she has into the war against Japan.

Prime Minister Churchill's wife, who accompanied him to the conference, was the medium for this statement. She declared in a Canadian broadcast that the British people "never forgot the score they have to settle with Japan", and are "resolved to see this through to the end with all the strength and devotion that is in them."

"That is the meaning of this Quebec conference," she emphasized.

Mrs. Churchill's statement presumably was calculated to dispel doubts expressed in some quarters in the United States whether England will "go all out" in helping Uncle Sam defeat Japan. London's concern over such speculation has been indicated by the fact that Churchill himself has taken the pains to say that Britain will be in the war against Japan "up to the hilt to the finish", and Foreign Secretary Eden has more than once made a similar commitment.

There are mountainous reasons why England must play her full part. Eden summed the thing up well a few days ago when he said in a speech:

"We have scores of our own to settle with the Japanese. They have overrun vast territories which formed part of the British commonwealth and empire and we are determined, as with Germany, to see that our victory is utterly complete."

HOPES OF INDIA TO BE UNFOLDED BY MISSIONARY

Rev. John Patterson Will Speak at Grace Church Sunday Morning

The Rev. John Patterson, missionary of the Methodist Church to the Hyderabad Conference in India, and superintendent of the Vikarabad District in that land will be the guest speaker at Grace Methodist Church Sunday morning.

He will speak on his experiences of 23 years in India and of the post-war hopes and aspirations of the 388,000,000 people of that nation.

Working with Indian Christian leaders in the hundreds of small villages surrounding the town of Vikarabad, Rev. Patterson has spent 16 years in helping rebuild the communities and improve the community life.

He has helped to teach the people how to build better houses—there were never any windows in the mud walls until he suggested that "holes" be left for ventilation and light. He has helped improve the farm practices, the poultry and animal stock, while he has been preaching the Gospel message, helping to heal the illnesses that are prevalent in south India. The worship services designed for ample village chapels, that he has conducted have been the pattern for worship services in other parts of India among Christians.

Rev. Patterson was born in Greenock, Scotland, spent his earliest years in Ireland, and as a youth came to America where he studied at Baker Academy and Baker University, Baldwin, Kansas, later taking post-graduate degrees at Drew Theological Seminary and Kansas State University.

He first went to India in 1921, and was for a period principal of the boys' high school in Hyderabad and pastor of the English Church in Secunderabad, in the Deccan.

A Controlled Pence

Sweden and Switzerland, two small nations not at war, have the courage to declare that no asylum should be given to leaders "who by their actions have defied the conscience of the world or betrayed their own countries." They could hardly have dared to take this step until the greatest war peril of Europe had its wings clipped, but they deserve honor for making their stand known at the earliest possible moment.

This is the beginning of a voluntary movement for peace which may roll around the world. And this time, as decent men and nations everywhere hope, the remedy of world peace control may really "take." Meantime America had better keep a sharp outlook on Argentina which threatens to become a new Nazi breeding spot.

Woman's Place

As American business moves into normal production after the war, former congressman Maury Maverick foresees a bright outlook for working women. As quoted in the New York Times, he says: "Under a system for restricted production, where you have raised the price of products by virtue of scarcity, women will have to stay home." But he doesn't believe they will want to do that.

"It isn't going to work out," he says, "because women have learned too much to go back." He points out, as a sign of the times, the case of an enterprising woman who, when "faced with a cut-back," proceeded to hire 25 other women to work under her in her own shop. He thinks the women "will either be hooting it up or doing something constructive, so we have to do something to make it so they can work."

That will doubtless be fine in some ways. The women will have a better chance to use more of their natural energy and enterprise. But an ordinary onlooker is bound to have some mental and domestic reservations. He wonders about meals, beds, and other phases of housekeeping, and whether he himself will have to do kitchen work, or whether the whole family will "eat out."

A Lazy Future

Surely any forward-looking American, with an eye to the future development of our civilization, should not rejoice very greatly over the prospect of a general 40-hour working week. That would be equivalent to eight hours of work five days in the week. Or expressed in another way, it would mean working in any given week, about one-fourth of the time available.

Nobody, of course, want to return to the twelve-hour day which once prevailed in this country. But to most people—and farmers especially—the apparent ideal of so many workers and theorists at present seems rather absurd.

A little thinking should serve to remind the extreme short-hour advocates that the shorter time they work per day or week, the less they are destined to get for their labor by any reasonable accounting in the long run. Things even out, and when workers in general shorten their hours unduly, they are limiting production, and thereby keeping up the prices of the things

An Indispensable Man

SPOKANE, Wash.—(AP)—Steen Ferguson, who started in the lumber business at 12, is now an 80-year-old sawyer at the Priest lake outlet saw mill. He was called back into service last year when the mill would have closed for lack of an experienced sawyer.

Steady Shaver

FLORA, Miss.—(AP)—A soldier stationed at the Army Service Forces Training Center here is using an American safety razor blade which was found on the body of a dead German in the first World War. He says the blade, discovered in the battle of Meuse Argonne, has been used daily for the last 20 years.

Today's Horoscope

Today's birthday child is a dreamer. You have a vivid imagination, make elaborate plans, which you never carry out. Cultivate self-reliance, perseverance and foresight. You are loving and lovable; gentle and attractive. You are a favorite among your friends and popular with everyone. During your next year do not hesitate to employ novel business methods and act upon your own intuitions. Guard against imposition and avoid law and doubtful speculations. The child born today will make good in life and be aided by superiors and elders. A medical, military or sea-faring career promises success.

they have to buy. Workers can get ahead more effectively by producing all they can without hurting themselves, thus creating plenty of everything and getting their share in lower prices.

If the people of this country are willing to get back to the theory which made America as great as it is—pride in good workmanship and willingness to work combined with ambition for accomplishment, rather than seeing how much can be obtained for doing the smallest possible amount of work, then again America will be on the upswing. The scheme of "getting something for nothing" is neither sound nor constructive. A parasitic plan of life is usually far from productive.

Ye Shall Know the Truth

Congressman Fulbright "has something" when he says that the other nations in general need to be treated to a free flow of news, along with their bread and butter and meat and vegetables. For news is a large and growing part of civilized life, and its widespread influence is necessary to make the nations free and keep them free.

This is especially true in war time. Righteous wars are waged with truth as much as material weapons. And a world press which uniformly told and upheld the truth would soon create a free world. It is with lies, spread by a slave press and radio, that the Hitler gang has built up its weird, criminal system of life.

There is reason to fear now that it will be harder to combat those Nazi lies than to lick the enemy. But eventually the truth will penetrate German heads. And the ideal expressed by Sumner Welles may prevail. "When this war is over," he says, "the peoples of the earth must never again permit a situation to arise where any people shall be deprived of their inherent right to know the truth."

Causes and Cure of Gallstones

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

GALLSTONES is something that might happen to anybody. In fact according to statistics it already has happened to 10 per cent of the population. And if you are selective and refer only to people over forty years of age the proportion is much higher. Some statistics show that in women over sixty, one out of four (25%) have gallstones.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

The reasons for this frequency are not far to seek. The gallbladder is one of the bays, or backwaters, of the body. It is a little sac in which bile rests quietly most of the 24 hours, until the bile is needed in fat digestion and then the gallbladder empties, or allows the bile to escape into the intestine. The bile contains in solution substances which can crystallize and form stones.

This does not happen unless there is a central foreign body around which to crystallize. The nucleus of the gallstone is usually a conglomeration of bacteria or mucus of disintegrated cells, the products of inflammation. Since all the blood from the intestines goes to the liver first, in the course of 40 years a good deal of this blood must contain bacteria. This lodges in the gallbladder and forms the nucleus for, first, inflammation and, second, gallstone formation. Q. E. D.—many people over 40 have gallstones.

Treatment of Gallstones

The treatment of gallstones would seem to be a fairly obvious matter. We can detect them with a very high degree of accuracy and frequency. The dye test with the X-ray is very dependable. So we are able to tell they are there. Surgery has reached such a state of perfection that gallstones can be removed completely and finally with a minimum of risk. They cannot be dissolved by any medicines taken by mouth, or in the veins. Surgery is the only way.

But human nature being what it is, and Nature in general being what it is, everybody who has them does not necessarily run to have them hacked out on the slightest provocation. For one reason many of them are silent and give no trouble. For another, even if a set should flare up occasionally and go on the rampage, medical treatment can control them pretty well and keep a fellow reasonably comfortable for years. For the final reason only a very small proportion of the population really years for surgical operations. To say the least they do not conduce to saving money or freedom from discomfort. And I may say I am quite sympathetic to that attitude. I am not at all hardboiled towards people who are trying to avoid surgery.

One may reasonably ask, however, whether the patient is running any grave risk if he elects to keep his gallstones a while and give up his surgeon. This is especially pertinent now that hospital facilities are so taxed and patients should consider whether their complaints are sufficiently serious to warrant their occupying a hospital room.

A Boston surgeon, Dr. Bearse, has reviewed his experiences with his gallstone patients with these questions in mind. He found that a consecutive series of about 250 patients had had gallstones for over five years. About three-fifths had no complications and seemed in quite good health. Two-fifths of his patients had developed complications more or less serious: the duration of harboring gallstones in this group was about seven years.

Of course the occurrence of complications—jaundice, intractable indigestion, prostrating attacks of colic—should call for operation, in spite of all objections. This report concludes, however: "Operation may safely be deferred in patients with gallstones so long as there are no complications and provided the postponement does not impair the patients resistance."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

T. H.: What effect does coffee have on high blood pressure? I am 70 years old.

Answer: Coffee has no effect on blood pressure. It is good for people 70 years old.

Q. Have you any suggestions for overcoming blushing, in the youth or adult?

A. Blushing can be reduced if the person will get it out of his or her head that it matters, rather consider it a distinguished item in personality, making him different from others. Take the attitude it is your own face and your own business.

T. O.R.:—When the feet begin to burn and turn reddish-blue a few minutes after resting on the floor is this a circulatory disturbance, and what can be done about it?

Answer: Yes, it is a circulatory disturbance, but may be induced by diabetes. Have a urinalysis for sugar. Treatment is by heat and leg exercises (letting the legs hang over the bed, and then raising them straight up while lying on the back), but it is serious enough to warrant medical consultation.

Mrs. J. H.: Please explain the injection called theelin. I am 41 years old and very nervous. A doctor advised this treatment.

Answer: Theelin is an ovarian derivative that has been very successful in substitution therapy, especially for relieving symptoms in the change of life.

CHAPTER TWENTY

ANNE LAUGHED as Dan held her hand in the lobby of the Washington hotel. It was her strange, silvery laugh which had disturbed Dan from the first time he'd seen her. He let her fingers slip from his clasp and sat down facing her. She seemed different here than she had in Talbot. She seemed to fit these surroundings and be harder and more assured. Her eyes were mocking.

"It's a vacation. Mrs. Reynolds thought I needed one at the end of my first month. I thought this would be a change. I got here yesterday."

"And you're not going back?" She was surprised and, with a quick motion of her hand, pushed the blotter over the letter she'd started to write. Her whole manner had changed.

"Whatever gave you that idea?" "Nobody ever goes back. You can't until you're old. It's like that."

She smiled more confidently. "Of course you would say that. You're a wanderer. It's in your blood, just as your brother says. But you might let him know that you were all right, at least. This is a perfect opportunity to write him."

"That's why I came in here." "Then you're not staying at this hotel?" His grin flashed across his face for a moment. "Do I look like the kind of a guy who goes away? I've been working—over on the Virginia side." He waved his hand. "I finished today. Two weeks is enough."

"I know. And now you're headed west. I suppose. You were telling me about the girl in Santa Monica."

"Don't you ever forget things?" "Yes." She turned her head away for a moment. "I'm like you in that. I believe in forgetting things. But I do want to thank you for saving my life. I'm not as good a swimmer as I thought I was."

"Then you aren't mad at me?" "Why should I be? Accidents will happen. You should have ignored town gossip. It was silly of you to run away. That made it look as if you did it on purpose."

"I did."

She shrugged. "It would be like you to say that. Russell explained."

"To heck with Russell." She picked up her pen. "In any case, I think you should write him. He may mean nothing to you, but you do mean a great deal to him. I know."

"He's a smooth talker, anyway."

"I think he's much more than that."

Dan thrust back his dark hair with a nervous hand. "Then why write? You can tell him you saw me, and I won't have to waste any paper and ink."

Anne made up her mind. "I can't tell him."

"Afraid of Laura?"

"I'm afraid of no one. I can't tell him because I'm not going back."

She moved the blotter from her letter. "I was just writing Mrs. Reynolds when I looked up and saw you down there."

"Where are you going?" He leaned forward and his voice shook a little.

She laughed. "Such a question from a man like you. Maybe I've decided to wander off into the sunset. Haven't I as much right to do it as you?"

"You've let Laura drive you away."

"Oh, no. In fact, Laura has been quite decent. And Mrs. Reynolds is a grand old lady. I've just decided I'm not interested in Talbot any more. I'm going—somewhere else. It's in my blood. Did anyone drive you away?"

"Really? I'm surprised. Is it a secret or just something I could understand?"

"That's right." His hand covered hers as it lay on the writing desk. "I came away because I was afraid. Afraid of you."

"Me?"

"That's right. You don't understand. I dumped you into the river because I was crazy about you. I had to do it or—to tell you. I had to run away or else tell you. I knew I couldn't even write you or I'd tell you."

She moistened her lips. "You're telling me now."

He suddenly drew back and sat very straight. "Yes. I can tell you now. It can't mean anything now. You're going to leave Talbot and I'll never see you again."

"How funny you should say that." She picked up her letter and, staring it slowly across, dropped the pieces into the basket near her.

"I'll give myself a little more time to think before I decide. Anyway, it's time for lunch. Let's have a good lunch and laugh at all the fools in the world. If you haven't money, I have. And this is my vacation. I've earned it."

She got up and he rose with her. "I don't get it. What do you mean?"

She slipped an arm through his and laughed. "I mean I'm hungry and we should have lunch together. I want you to tell me all the amusing stories you can think of. I want to laugh. Go ahead and make love to me. Tell me how beautiful I am and how crazy you are about me."

Her voice had raised a little, and several people turned to look at them. Dan was conscious of no embarrassment, only a strange fire which leaped in his veins at her touch. They went downstairs together and across the lobby. A tall, handsome man who had been registering crossed their path and stopped in amazement.

"Anne!"

The girl held out her hand. "Dr. Reynolds! What a surprise."

He caught her hand and held it firmly. "Anne, where have you been? I looked everywhere for you."

She laughed. "Are you here looking for me? But we mustn't talk riddles in front of Dan. Dr. Reynolds, this is Dan Smith."

The older man shook hands without taking his eyes off the girl. Dan had never seen her look so radiant as she did now. Her eyes were dancing with excitement.

"Isn't this all such fun? Doctor, you're just in time to take us to lunch. And we want a good lunch, too, the grandest one that can be found."

"I'm sure Mr. Smith will excuse us for a moment. I have something important to say to you, Anne."

She laughed again and clung to Dan's arm. "I know Dan wouldn't let me out of his sight even for a moment. And naturally I have no secrets from him."

"Anne, this is important."

"Of course it is. Everything is important. How is Mrs. Raynor? I hope your wedding trip wasn't too exhausting. Where can we lunch so you can tell us all about it? Dan will be so interested. Have you slipped away so soon?"

The doctor frowned and gave a quick glance around. "I can't lunch. I have a very important consultation. Then I'm rushing back to New York. I want to take you back with me. It's a long story. Anne, and on the train."

"I hate long stories." Her eyes were so bright they glittered. "If you're too busy to lunch, Dan and I must be running along. Good-by."

He caught her arm. "I can't let you go like this."

"Calling Dr. Raynor. Calling Dr. Dwight Raynor. Dr. Dwight Raynor."

It was Anne who caught the page boy as he passed. "This is Dr. Raynor," she said. Then she added, "I see you've lost none of your popularity."

The tall, dignified man spoke sharply. "It's the hospital calling."

He said, "I'm here only for a few hours and—"

"Dan and I are only here for a few hours, too, Dwight. We're getting married in Alexandria, and it's very quick there. Dan is so impatient. And I know how busy you are, or you could be best man. I know you'd love to."

A bellboy hurried up. "Telegram for Dr. Raynor." As the tall man took the message, Anne laughed again and drew Dan away. They walked through the great open doors and out into the street where Dan had stood hesitating only a very few minutes before. Dan glanced back, but the man was not following. They walked along a block and Anne seemed to slump.

All at once she seemed tired and there was no mocking laughter in her eyes. Her voice was husky.

"That's over," she exclaimed. "Thanks for not letting me down. Let's go somewhere."

He helped her into a waiting taxi and gave orders. Then he sat beside her. She patted his arm. "I was sure you'd be a sport while I was going through my act."

Dan smiled. "You used to love him, didn't you?" he asked.

"I dare say. Anyway, he married a nice rich girl. Now where are we going? I'm hungry."

"Alexandria."

"Why?" She looked at him with genuine astonishment.

"We're getting married there."

She drew a long breath. "You're joking."

"But I'm not. I'm quite serious. I never let a lady down. And—I—I am crazy about you. Have you forgotten?"

"I don't realize what you're doing."

"Don't I? Besides, I won't be chained. Nothing can do that."

She laughed suddenly. "And I am on my vacation."

As she spoke, the tears welled up in her eyes. He put his arms about her and kissed her quickly.

"You mustn't cry. Only fools cry about losing things. We'll have fun—lots of fun."

Washington at a Glance

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — I've been talking to the British and the War department. It's about one of those little things that seem inconsequential in the war's larger affairs; but one which sometimes sandpapers the raw tempers of Allies at war against a common enemy.

It's about the mixup in commands in the European theater. Actually there never was and probably won't be any such mixup. On the surface there appeared to be.

The actual facts are these: Gen. Dwight D. "Ike" Eisenhower was placed in supreme command of the western invasion forces. It was agreed then that Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery should be commander of the Allied ground forces (that is, over all field commander) "until such time as the numerical strength of the American forces should become greater than those of the British commonwealth."

Through some error, the contingent stipulation just quoted wasn't made public at the time the order of command was announced.

Consequently, when it was announced that Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley had been elevated to co-equal command with Gen. Montgomery, the British felt that their beloved "Monty" had been kicked in the teeth, especially since the English and Canadian troops had been tied down for weeks in the brutal corner at Caen, while the Yanks were making hay and headlines by roaming all over France and even into Germany.

Further confusion resulted when Lt. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., was given practically all the credit for the break-through at Arnhem, a maneuver planned and carried out under orders of Gen. Bradley.

Another command confusion is in the making (but probably will be straightened out any day now) as the forces of Maj. Gen. Alexander M. Patch, Jr., who is in complete command of the invasion armies in southern France, join the western invasion troops.

The situation is clearing now and wouldn't have been serious at all if it hadn't been that England's greatest hero of this war had seemed to have been slighted and an overemphasis given to the exploits of "Pistol-Packing" Patton, to the exclusion of his senior officer, whose strategy he was merely carrying out, although brilliantly.

There isn't much doubt here that Montgomery's new title of field marshal was given principally to allay any fears that he had been demoted. As a matter of fact, Field Marshal Montgomery now technically outranks Eisenhower for we have no similar rank. But don't let that worry you. "Ike" is still the boss man on the continent and will continue to be.

Gen. Bradley, who so brilliantly planned and executed the blitzkrieg of western Europe, and Field Marshal Montgomery, the hero of El Alamein, who engineered the turning point in this war, are next in line. Under them are the Pattons and it is presumed there also will be the Patches of tomorrow's junction of forces, whether they come from the south or north.

Squirrels Are Plentiful As Season Opens Here

If the hunters who take to Fayette County's woods don't come back with their bag of squirrels, it's because they can't hit 'em.

For Chalmers Burns, the county's conservation officer who makes it his business to observe as well as protect wild life, says squirrels are plentiful this year.

The open season on squirrels for this southern section of Ohio started Friday. There was no loud bombardment such as usually accompanies the opening of the pheasant and rabbit season. But, it's a safe bet that many a rifle—that's what most squirrel hunters who go in for sport more than meat use—and shotgun went into crisp autumn sunshine.

Burns said squirrels were plentiful here this year and that most of them are the fox squirrels. He said that the theory generally accepted among sportsmen and conservation authorities was that

Reds Divide Doubleheader With Cubs as Series Ended

By JACK HAND
(By The Associated Press)

Draft board calls and a pro football exhibition added further confusing overtones to the American League chase today as three of the four contenders went back into action after a four-day "holiday."

Dick Wakefield, Detroit's slugging left fielder, was notified by his draft board he had passed his army physical and was subject to call at any time. The former Navy Pre-Flight cadet said he did not expect to be called before mid-October. Notice was sent to pitcher Denny Galehouse of the St. Louis Browns to report Monday for his pre-induction physical.

Philadelphia's pro-grid exhibition Tuesday had an indirect, although perhaps inconsequential, bearing on the race. Steady rains forced two successive postponements of a scheduled important Athletic-Yankee game, resulting in a transfer to New York to be part of a Sunday doubleheader.

If Sunday's games hit bad weather, they will be taken off the books. At this stage, one game less than the regular 154 might make the percentage point difference that could win or lose the flag.

Although the Philadelphia game probably would not have been played because of the hurricane, even if no football game had been held, President Ed Barrow of the Yankees was prepared to ask the majors for legislation at the Department meetings forbidding any team from renting its park for football before the close of its home season.

Further conflict with football might arise if Detroit won the championship as the first World Series game at Briggs Stadium would be held Sunday, Oct. 8, when the Brooklyn Tigers and the Lions are slated to open the Detroit home season in the National Grid League.

Bill Voiselle became the first New York Giant pitcher in seven years to win 20 games as he stopped the Phillies, 12-1, yesterday, to tie Chicago for fourth place. The Cubs bowed to Cincinnati, 3-2, in 13 innings but got an even break in the nightcap, 4-2. Brooklyn climbed into sixth by stopping Boston, 5-4.

Reds Face Crisis In Long Struggle For Second Place

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 15.—(P)—A five-game series against Pittsburgh, opening with a single contest tonight decides whether the Cincinnati Reds should keep thinking about second-place money.

No one around here believes the Reds should worry about such matters, however, because Pittsburgh is now holding a five and one-half game lead.

The Reds wound up the season's business in Chicago yesterday. They won the 13-inning opener 3 to 2, but took a 4 to 2 loss in the nightcap.

Ray Mueller, Cincinnati catcher, caught his 134th and 135th games to set a new endurance record for consecutive appearances behind the plate in one season. George Gibson, of the 1909 Pirates, held the record of 133 games.

In celebration, Mueller hit his 10th homer of the year in the first game.

—Spying— On Sports

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—(P)—Prexy Ed Barrow of the Yankees is threatening to introduce legislation which would forbid major league baseball clubs to lease their parks for football before the end of the season.

That's contrary to the Branch Rickey-Phil Wrigley theory of supplying year-round activity for ball parks, but it helps bring out the fact that pro football is old enough to control its own fields.

The ball parks, except maybe the Polo Grounds and Cleveland Stadium, aren't suited to football.

There has been talk of building new stadia in Philadelphia and Washington and one story has it that the National Football League delayed awarding a Los Angeles franchise because Bing Crosby plans to build a plant for a team there after the war.

So if the baseball clubs shut down, maybe the footballers will build their own—and lease the premises to colleges for Saturday afternoons.

BEST SEASON IN FIVE YEARS FOR AMERICAN ASSOCIATION

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 15.—(P)—George M. Trautman, president of the American Association, today said the league had enjoyed its best season since 1939 with 1,053,900 patrons attending games.

Trautman estimated that with Ladies Day admissions, service-men, passes, and expected crowds at the annual Governors' Cup series, the total would approach 1,350,000.

The champion Milwaukee Brewers led the league in at-home attendance for the second straight year with 235,840. Louisville was second with 224,035 and four clubs were well over 100,000, Trautman said.

The players' bonus fund—raised by setting aside one cent from each adult admission—totaled $10,531, Trautman said, and will be divided among players on teams finishing one-two in the championship race and the winner and runner-up clubs in the annual play-off series.

Milwaukee, which finished first in the regular season, received $4,388, while Toledo, the second-place team, will divide $1,755.

Five-twelfths of the bonus pool is divided by the pennant winner, two-twelfths by the second place club; three-twelfths by the team winning the Shaughnessy playoffs and two-twelfths goes to the runner-up club. The playoff champion will receive $2,632 and the runnerup $1,755, Trautman said.

MUD HENS TWO UP IN PLAY-OFFS

(By The Associated Press)

Toledo's Mud Hens made it two straight over St. Paul last night in their American Association playoff series with a 10-7 victory, while the pennant-winning Milwaukee Brewers were reaching the .500 mark by shutting out Louisville, 5-0, to square their series at one apiece.

At Toledo, the Apostles took a 7 to 4 lead with a four run spurge in the top of the seventh, but the Hens came back in their half with three to tie. Toledo sewed up the victory with a three run cluster in the eighth. Pitcher Johnny Miller got credit for the victory. There were nine errors, six by St. Paul.

Although Louisville had a man on base in every inning except the seventh, Pitcher Don Hendrickson was tough in the pinches and the Colonels left 11 men stranded.

After going hitless for two frames the Brevs scored three runs in the third. Otis Clark, who was touched for 12 hits, was the losing pitcher. Hendrickson yielded seven hits and walked five.

Phillips said Herron confessed after he had submitted to a lie detector test.

He told police Ardella May had cried all Sunday night, and had kept him awake. He was in the kitchen the following morning he said, when she came and stood in the doorway, still whimpering.

Grabbing a shoe he hurled it at the little girl, striking her in the stomach, Phillips said Herron related, adding that the uncle said he then spanked her sharply.

Police today planned to question again Mrs. Herron, who had said she found the little girl in the back yard apparently the victim of an accident. She said she had returned her to bed, fed her and had expected her to recover.

The Brobst and Herron families live in the same house. The dead girl's father, Dorwin Brobst, is a private in the army and was stationed at Camp Campbell, Ky.

Phillips said he would file second degree murder charges against Herron today. Maximum penalty under the charges is life imprisonment.

GRAIN MARKET NEWS SUMMARY

CHICAGO, Sept. 15.—AP—Wheat futures turned easy today after a strong opening and other markets were unsettled with barley and September oats holding independently firm.

Trade sources said the dip in wheat resulted from liquidation of a long line and from selling that apparently was for elevator account. Spreaders took July wheat and sold May in exchange. The May contract went to a four cent discount under the December price.

In the corn pit there was scattered selling, some of it hedging, and the demand was limited.

At the close wheat was 3/4 higher to 1/2 lower than yesterday's finish, September $1.57 1/2. Corn was 1/4 higher to 3/4 lower, December $1.07 1/2. Oats were up 1/4 to 1/2, September 22 1/2-3/4. Rye was 1/4 to 1/2 higher, September $1.54-54. Barley was 1/4 to 1/2 higher, September $1.02.

Germany September 8 and ordered the Germans to quit Finland by September 15.

The garrisoned island, also known as Suursaari, is in the Finnish gulf. It is important as a control point for German attempts to blockade the Russian Baltic fleet. The island also has protected the northern flank of German forces trapped by the Russians in Estonia and Latvia.

The Finnish communique said the attacks were launched by German naval forces and that nine German ships were reported either sunk or set afire.

ROBERT WARNER LOSES ALL GAS FOR DURATION

Is Also Facing Speeding
Charges Filed in Court Here

Robert H. (Pig Iron) Warner, 1027 Grandon Avenue, Columbus, former resident of Jeffersonville, and known to authorities as a slot-machine distributor, Wednesday night was deprived of gasoline ration for the duration of the war, as result of speeding charges.

Warner was deprived of his gasoline by action of the Western-ville Rationing Board before which he was summoned due to speeding charges filed against him in Madison County July 22. He was driving at 70 miles per hour, according to R. H. Richards, state highway patrolman.

Coincidentally the night he appeared before the Westernville board and surrendered his gasoline coupons, he was to have appeared before Judge R. H. Sites in Washington C. H. on a speeding charge filed against him by H. G. Ramsey, state highway patrolman, who cited him to appear after halting him near the city recently for driving at excessive speed.

It was the second time Ramsey had stopped him for the same offense. The previous time he was arrested by Ramsey, he posted bond and forfeited the bond, police said.

It is understood he has retained an attorney in the case here, and it was indicated that he will be brought back to face the charge unless he appears without delay.

Reports state that Warner forfeited a $50 bond for his appearance before Mayor Speasmaker of London.

OPA records disclosed that Warner was arrested March 13, 1943, for speeding in Franklin County and fined $10 and costs. He was arrested again on June 2, 1943, in Ross County for speeding and again was fined $10 and costs. He was arrested a third time in Clark County for speeding and forfeited a $50 bond, it is stated.

In another case in Franklin County a few months ago Warner was required to surrender keys of his car to John H. Vandervoort, OPA enforcement attorney, after he had been reported violating rationing regulations.

According to newspaper reports from Columbus, Warner last March figured in another OPA investigation when he allegedly obtained 500 gallons of non-highway gas for use on his farm north of Columbus. At that time he surrendered 49 "R" coupons which entitled him to 245 gallons of gas for non-highway use. When he was unable to produce sufficient "R" coupons for the remaining 255 gallons of gas, that amount was drawn from his storage tank on his farm, an OPA investigator stated.

ANOTHER LOCAL MAN IS VICTIM OF GERMAN GUN

Pvt. Herbert Sanderson Dies
Of Wounds Received in France June 11

Bringing deep sorrow to relatives and an unusually wide circle of friends, word was received Friday morning by Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Sanderson, this city, that their son, Pvt. Herbert Sanderson, 22, had died of wounds received in action in France, June 11.

The telegram from the War Department did not state when death occurred, or where, but it is presumed that he was in a hospital in England.

Pvt. Sanderson graduated from the Washington C. H. High School in 1938, and was in his third year at Ohio University when he entered the military service in December of 1942.

He received his training at Fort Bragg, N. C., for three months, and was then sent to North Africa, where he participated in the war, later taking part in the campaign in Sicily and Italy. He was then sent to Ireland, and trained in the glider infantry for the invasion of France. It was while fighting in France a few days after D-day that he was wounded.

Mr. and Mrs. Sanderson were notified July 4 that their son had been "slightly wounded" in action.

They had not heard from him since before June 1, and had received no word either of or from him since learning that he was wounded, until the telegram announcing his death from wounds came Friday morning.

He was awarded the silver star for gallantry in action while in Italy.

Pvt. Sanderson was a young man of many admirable traits, and was held in high regard by all who knew him. He was a member of Grace Methodist Church.

In addition to his parents he is survived by two brothers, Robert, Jr., of Camden, N. J., and Pvt. Richard, in the South Pacific.

PUBLIC RECEPTION
XENIA — Lt. Col. Harold L. Hays and wife will be honored at a public reception at the O. S. and S. O. Home Friday night.

Hospital, Belief

Pfc. Robert Fountain, son of Mrs. Bessie Fountain of Good Hope, is on his way home—home to Ohio, at least.

He phoned his mother Monday from Miami, Fla., telling her he had arrived safely in the United States and said he probably would be sent to Fletcher General Hospital in Cambridge for treatment of his wounds received in the battle for Rome in Italy.

Pfc. Fountain wrote previously that he had been wounded in the arms and face by a German hand grenade. His mother has no more details. He sent his Purple Heart award to her more than a week ago when he was still in a Naples, Italy, hospital.

Pfc. Fountain has been in service nearly two years. He went overseas in March.

His family is planning to go to Cambridge to see him as soon as they learn definitely that he is there.

Give It A CHANCE
To Help Feel BETTER

You can help your bowels to act properly by making it a habit to move them at regular times every day. If an occasional attack of bowel sluggishness causes headache or temporary minor intestinal distress, give TONJON No. 1 or 2 a chance to remove the waste matter accumulated in the bowels. Then see for yourself how much better you will feel.
